

DESIGN JOURNAL

A shared reading room.

Small decisions, considered together.

01 / A place to read

A reading room works when the ordinary things are considered together. Daylight falls across the table rather than into the reader's eyes. Shelves stay within reach. There is space to put down a bag, open a book and remain for a while. The room does not need to announce these decisions. Their effect is felt in use.¹

-
1. This is a demonstration document. Its text, layout and page numbers are generated from one React component.